The way diabetes services are delivered for some people with diabetes is changing

From April 1st 2010 if you live within NHS Leicester City area you may be able to access your diabetes care closer to home and a choice of location that suits you.

This innovative new service will be available to those people with diabetes requiring additional support and help with their diabetes management

The team delivering this service will have the right skills to support people with diabetes requiring more complex care within their own communities.

For some people the change will be more immediate as they will be able to be transferred directly into the new service.

Your Consultant / GP / diabetes nurse will be able to discuss whether your are eligible for the new service. They will arrange an appointment at a time and location to suit you.

Your questions answered...

Why is the service changing?
The developments are taking place to ensure we continue to provide good services that help people with diabetes live healthier lives.

How is this change better for me?
Clinic locations will be closer to home and easily accessible.

Does this mean I may have to change my GP for all my care?
No. Your existing GP will continue to look after you.

I am currently being cared for by a consultant in the hospital. Will the new service be inferior to the care I am getting now?
No. If you have complex care needs the consultant will continue to support your care.

Does this mean I will not need to go to the hospital for my diabetes at all?
Your clinical needs will continue to be assessed and if necessary you may be referred back to the hospital.

When is this going to happen?
From 1st April 2010
